ESC CRT: From Evidence to Practice

ESC CRT: From Strategy to Solution

The Aim

Optimal patient care
PREMS and PROMS
Low MACE , low harm

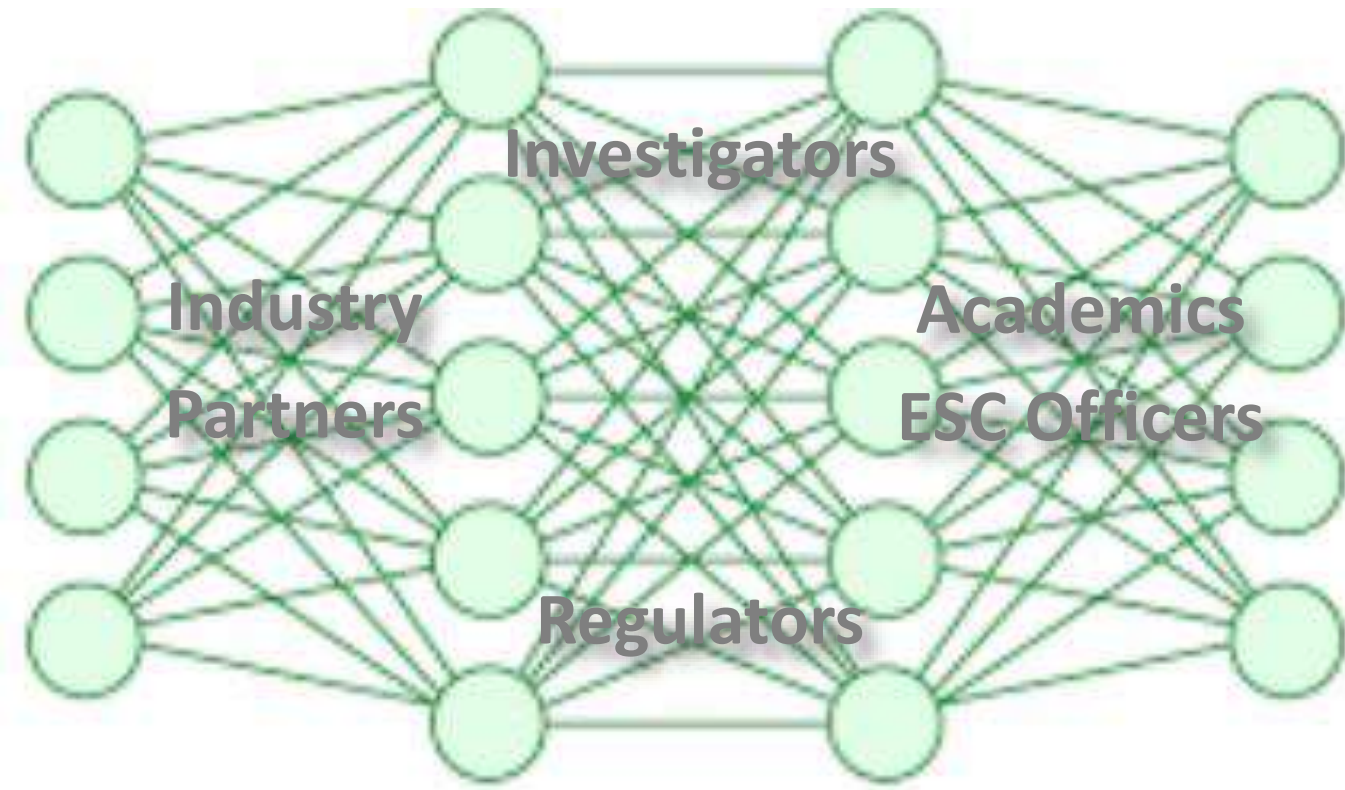

The Problem

Supoptimal OMT
Underuse of procedures and dievices

The Solution

Easy access
Supporting measures for patients/physicians
Nudges/Incentives for OMT implementation
Policy makers support

ESC CRT: Neuronal Network a Approach

ESC CRT: Hurdles to Implementation

Cardiovascular Round Table

Patient

Sceptis against science/chemistry vs. nature
Low levels of education, conspiracy theories
Negligence

Physician

Low levels of education
Complicated guidelines, access
Negligence, time

Guidelines

Long documents
Complicated
Language barriers

Health Care System

Lack of incentives (short term costs vs. gain)
Reimbursement
Access to medication, devices, procedures
Lack of QC/registries

Outlook of Part 2: What to do about it

- Digesting Part 1
- From the Problem to solution
- What might work in Guideline implementation
- What does work in Guideline implementation
- What are the hurdles to use what works?
- What trials do we need to provide evidence for implementation?

Outlook of Part 1 and 2: Outcomes

- Align our minds and get back to our institutions
- Publication in the European Heart Journal
- Advocacy at the European level
- Testing new interventions: Pragmatic trials?
- Other ideas?
