Valves repaired. Lives improved.

Transcatheter Mitral Valve Repair

Patient groups in which significant clinical benefits have been reported:

- Degenerative MR, declined for surgery¹
- Severe LV dysfunction refractory to medical therapy²
- Severe Heart Failure, despite optimal medical therapy³
- CRT non-responders⁴
- Bivalvular Disease: Severe Aortic Stenosis and Mitral Regurgitation⁵

The following parameters should be taken into consideration by the Heart Team⁶:

Moderate to severe or severe MR (Functional or Degenerative)

Echocardiographic criteria for eligibility

Level of surgical risk

Greater than one year life expectancy

You need commitment, focus and passion to find new ways to fight the diseases of this world: Innovation is at the heart of it.

Innovation for better health. Our commitment is to bring to patients around the world quality medicines for use in diagnosing, combating and preventing disease. Every day we work against time, researching new pathways, new molecules, new technologies – complementing our own capabilities with expertise of innovative partners from science and industry.

The success of this work is evidenced in new medicines for areas with significant unmet medical need such as cardiovascular and blood diseases. Our aim is a better quality of life for all.

Practical guidance on the use of oral factor Xa inhibitors in non-valvular atrial fibrillation: multidisciplinary perspectives

Satellite Symposium, Sunday 24th May 2015, 12:45 – 14:00
Paris Room, Congress Centre (Palacio de Congresos), Seville, Spain

This Satellite Symposium is fully organised and funded by:

Bristol-Myers Squibb

Date of preparation: March 2015 EUAP1830

Please join our internationally-renowned faculty, chaired by Professors Jóse López-Sendón (Spain) and Michael Böhm (Germany), who will present real-world evidence and clinical trial data, and discuss optimization of care in patients with NVAF receiving anticoagulation with oral factor Xa inhibitors from the multidisciplinary perspectives of the nephrologist, cardiologist, and haematologist.

We look forward to welcoming you to what promises to be an interesting and informative session.

Agenda

Time	Session	Speaker
12:45 – 12:50	Welcome and introduction	José López-Sendón – Spain
12:50 – 13:00	How big is the problem? Unmet medical needs in patients with NVAF: focus on renal impairment and elderly – insights from the nephrologist	Luis Ruilope – Spain
13:00 – 13:15	How to manage stroke prevention in patients with NVAF and renal impairment – insights from the cardiologist	José López-Sendón – Spain
13:15 – 13:30	Management of patients with NVAF – evidence from the ARISTOTLE study with apixaban	Michael Böhm – Germany
13:30 – 13:45	Anticoagulation assessment and bleeding management in clinical practice – insights from the haematologist	David Keeling – UK
13:45 – 13:55	Q&A and panel discussion	All
13:55 – 14:00	Concluding comments	Michael Böhm – Germany

SERVE-HF

Treatment of Sleep-Disordered Breathing by Adaptive Servo-Ventilation in HF patients

Treatment of sleep-disordered breathing by MV-ASV adaptive servo-ventilation in HF patients

SERVE-HF is a landmark study evaluating the use of minute ventilation targeted adaptive servo-ventilation (MV-ASV) for the treatment of sleep-disordered breathing (SDB) in patients with heart failure (HF), throughout Europe and Australia.

SERVE-HF is the first long-term randomised, controlled, international, multicentre study designed to assess the effects of MV-adaptive servo-ventilation on morbidity and mortality in patients with symptomatic chronic heart failure with reduced left ventricular ejection fraction (LVEF) and predominant central sleep apnoea–Cheyne-Stokes respiration (CSA–CSR).

Treatment of sleep-disordered breathing by MV-ASV adaptive servo-ventilation in HF patients

SERVE-HF is a landmark study evaluating the use of minute ventilation targeted adaptive servo-ventilation (MV-ASV) for the treatment of sleep-disordered breathing (SDB) in patients with heart failure (HF), throughout Europe and Australia.

SERVE-HF is the first long-term randomised, controlled, international, multicentre study designed to assess the effects of MV-adaptive servo-ventilation on morbidity and mortality in patients with symptomatic chronic heart failure with reduced left ventricular ejection fraction (LVEF) and predominant central sleep apnoea–Cheyne-Stokes respiration (CSA–CSR).
